

1 MARKET SITUATION AND OUTLOOK.

1.1 Economic situation

Economic Forecast Summary (March 2024)

After slowing to 0.2% in 2023, GDP is projected to pick up gradually to 0.5% in 2024 and 1.1% in 2025. Headline inflation is expected to fall to 3.7% in 2024 and to be close to target by the end of 2025. ## 1.2 Situation of the Meeting Industry.

The studies mentioned underneath state the following:

Critical price trends

The entire industry is affected disproportionately by the price increases. The price for events with up to 250 people has increased by 58% compared to 2019, for events with 600 people by 55% and for events with a maximum of 1,500 people by 46%. To make matters worse, sales have decreased by -68.4% in 2022. Furthermore, there is only about half the number of skilled workers compared to 2019. Due to this, countless projects cannot be implemented, and valuable revenue is lost.

Effects of the increases on the industry

Hosts and commissioning companies will have to expect further cost increases. Thus, live events will be used more selectively in the future and will be equipped with more generous budgets. At the same time, the stricter requirements regarding sustainability and hygiene will become an inherent part of all fair and event concepts. There will also be changes in lead-in times and order deadlines both of which will increase due to suppliers' workload. Building materials, AV technology and rented furniture will also register longer delivery times than in 2019.

Sustainability

In the coming years, the focus will increasingly be on sustainability. Sustainability is not only important for the future of our planet and not only for social responsibility, but also for the live communication industry. Clients and government attach increasing importance to sustainability and in the longer term it will save effort and money.

1.3 Meeting Trends in the Netherlands

MVO and sustainability

Carbon neutral. Compensate for what you emit! There are more and more tools to calculate your emissions. From just your transport to everything you do and/or use.

Travelling by train

More and more companies are choosing to use the train (where possible) to travel to their destination. But in some cases, flying is more convenient, faster and sometimes the only option. Many European railway companies are working to improve and speed up their routes and connections, also between the different countries. So, the train is going to gain ground in the coming years. Also, between cities themselves or as a transfer from the airport to the city center, the train is increasingly the best and fastest choice! In addition, traveling by train offers many other advantages

Green hotels and event locations

More and more hotels are becoming more sustainable to obtain a green key (or similar) certification. From complete renovations, clean energy sources, dealing with F&B differently (e.g., more local) and the processing of waste or (linen) cleaning. These efforts must also be demonstrated to receive and maintain certifications.

Authentic

Embrace your culture and history! In recent decades, many “world cities” have become busier, more commercial and larger. Many large (international) retail and food chains predominate in the city centres. Mass tourism means that the residents sometimes no longer feel at home in their own city. Here you see a clear change. Cities and regions are again opting for quality over quantity and for slow and authentic.

Local is the new global

Eat local. The local purchase of food is a trend that has been going on for a while and is almost impossible to imagine without the many (star) restaurants. Think of purchasing locally, for example directly from the farmer, growing vegetables and herbs yourself (organically) and consuming the products locally. Less transport is needed and there is no purchasing within a large chain, so that products often retain a fairer price, do not need to be processed and arrive fresher on your plate.

Slow food

Slow food preserves the cultural or traditional cuisine and with it the original use of crops, seeds, animals and agricultural practices of a region.

Off the beaten track

Nature is calling. Of course, it is wonderful to walk around in a bustling city and immerse yourself in the culture, beautiful architecture, and best restaurants. But you also see that within a program the combination with nature is increasingly being made.
